OVERVIEW

The Misogyny Index holds steady at 40, but the alarming social media spike to 54 masks a dangerous ideological shift: manosphere content and wife-shaming rhetoric are moving from fringe podcasts into mainstream circulation. While zero recorded

MISOGYNY OF THE DAY · PATTERN

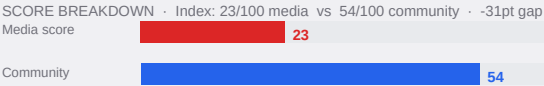

The "Misogyny of the Day" posts reveal a sophisticated pipeline: from manosphere ideological content (podcasts, YouTube) > into entertainment framing (wife-shaming, relationship mockery) > to real-time harassment of named women (Ann Gitari) and narrative inversion (DARVO abuse-denial). The three indexed posts span five days and cohere around a

MISOGYNY INDEX · ANALYSIS

The index flatlines at 40 (no delta from previous period), but this stasis is deceptive. News sentiment remains comparatively low at 23, while social media sentiment explodes to 54--a 31-point gap indicating that mainstream journalism is underreporting the intensity of misogynistic discourse circulating on X, TikTok, and YouTube. The persistence and reprising of BTP Studios Kenya's "Unplugged" content (four identical high-scoring entries in the feed) signals algorithmic amplification of anti-woman ideology dressed as entertainment and debate.

THE INSIGHT

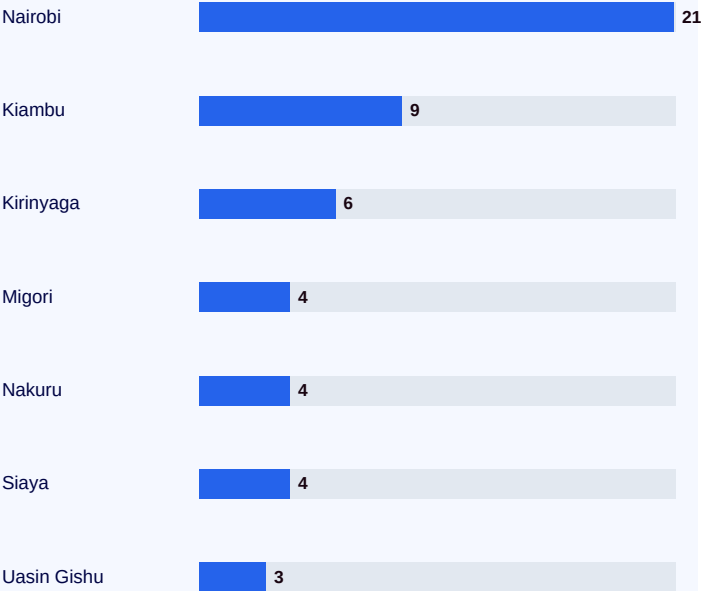

Kenya's misogyny index is not rising because the baseline contempt has been normalised to stasis--the ecosystem is now functioning as designed. Zero femicide cases recorded this period does not indicate progress; it indicates a critical intelligence failure: the harassment, humiliation, and ideological conditioning of women on social media is being measured separately from intimate partner violence, when the pipeline is visibly unified. BTP Studios, X, TikTok, and YouTube are not aberrations--they are the infrastructure through which manosphere ideology (wife-shaming, survivor-discrediting, financial-autonomy mockery) circulates at scale, priming audiences toward contempt and control. Ann Gitari's public humiliation by name is the warning. The next femicide case may not spike the index; it will simply complete the arc already visible in the data. We are not measuring the weather --we are watching the climate that precedes the violence.
