OVERVIEW

Kenya's misogyny index dropped 3 points to 54 this period, but the decline masks a dangerous stabilisation at an alarming baseline. Zero femicides formally recorded does not mean zero deaths--Rebecca Cheptegei's funeral and the hunt for

MISOGYNY OF THE DAY · PATTERN

The Misogyny of the Day posts reveal a three-stage pipeline: (1) worth-destruction ("Makindye girls are unmarriageable," 601K views), (2) entitlement-justification ("she's ugly, so mistreatment is logical"), and (3) murder-exculpation (reframing bodily autonomy as provocation worthy of death). Each stage is designed to make violence feel

TECH-FACILITATED VIOLENCE

11 incidents were facilitated across podcasts, YouTube, TikTok, and unspecified social media during this 14-day period. Podcasts and YouTube are hosting high-scoring manosphere content (8/8 alarming) with

MISOGYNY INDEX · ANALYSIS

The index sits at 54 (down from 57), with a concerning 5-point gap between news coverage (47) and social media sentiment (42)--indicating that mainstream reporting is outpacing the platform algorithm's visibility of misogyny. The Red Pill Podcast scored 8/8 alarming, as did "Women cannot love you" content on GUY CODE, signals that anti-feminist influencer networks are sustaining high-toxicity output despite the modest index decline. The two-track system--legacy news covering femicides while podcasts and TikTok amplify the ideologies that precede them--is the real risk signature.

THE INSIGHT

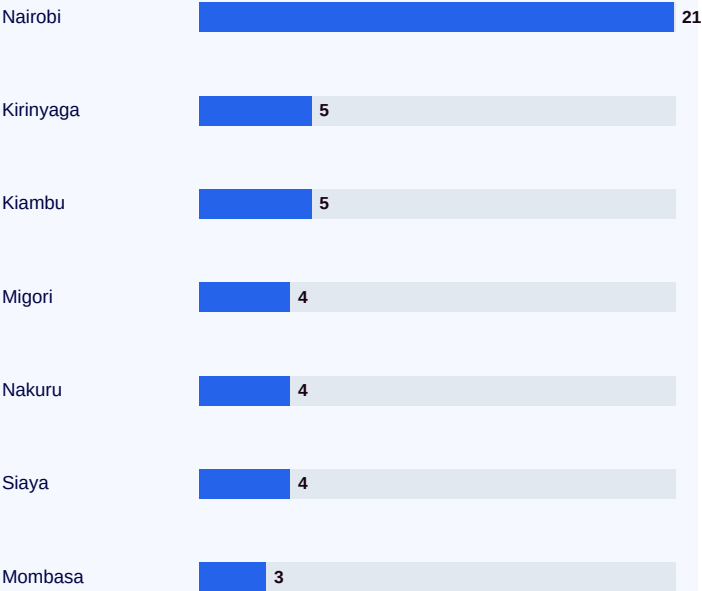

Kenya is experiencing a bifurcated crisis: on the ground, femicides continue (Cheptegei, Changawa, Nyongesa cases all active this period), yet formal case recording shows zero. Online, the manosphere is systematically scaling rhetoric that precedes and excuses violence--11 tech-facilitated incidents in 14 days across podcasts, YouTube, and TikTok. The modest 3-point index decline is noise; the signal is a stabilised baseline of 54, with podcasts and influencer networks running unmoderated at maximum alarming sentiment. The community is marching and demanding accountability while police deploy tear gas against them. The pipeline from dehumanising speech to lethal violence is visible, quantified, and accelerating through platforms designed to amplify it. Without urgent intervention on the tech side and state protection for protesters, the next two reporting periods will likely show case numbers climbing back toward crisis thresholds.

THE ASK · PRIORITY ACTIONS FOR POLICYMAKERS & FUNDERS

01 Ministry of Interior and National Police Service
Establish a dedicated Femicide Case Registry with mandatory reporting timelines, and cease hostile police responses to anti-femicide marches--redeploy officers currently tear-gassi

02 Meta (Facebook/Instagram), Google (YouTube), Spotify (podcast hosting)
Remove or demonetise Red Pill Podcast, GUY CODE, and equivalent manosphere channels scoring 8/8 alarming sentiment; implement algorithmic demotion of "women are unlovable / unmarri

03 Communications Authority of Kenya (CAK)
Issue binding directives to podcast platforms and YouTube requiring removal of content that reframes femicide as justified or provoked; establish sanctions (broadcasting fines, ad

04 Kenya Human Rights Commission (KHRC) + Amnesty International Kenya + FemSaidia K
Launch rapid-response coalition to document police violence against femicide protesters, file complaints with IPOA, and amplify marches through diaspora networks; coordinate weekly

05 National Bureau of Statistics (Kenya) + FemSaidia Intelligence Platform
Mandate all police stations to submit weekly femicide case counts (victim names, incident location, suspect status, platform involvement if tech-facilitated); cross-reference case
